Introduction

The Department of Commerce and Management organized a Syllabus Orientation Programme for faculty members to familiarize them with the updated curriculum prescribed by Bangalore University. The session was conducted by Prof. Rekha H. N., who attended the official syllabus orientation programme organized by Bangalore University in association with the Board of Studies members. The programme aimed to disseminate key insights, structural changes, and academic expectations discussed during the university-level orientation.

Objectives of the Programme

- To provide clarity on the revised syllabus structure and course framework introduced by Bangalore University.
- To understand the objectives, outcomes, and credit structure of the updated curriculum.
- To align teaching methodologies with the expectations of the Board of Studies.
- To ensure uniformity and effective implementation of the syllabus across all sections.
- To discuss evaluation patterns, assessment methods, and model question paper formats.

Outcomes of the Programme

- Faculty members gained a comprehensive understanding of the revised syllabus and subject components.
- Clarity was achieved regarding course objectives, program outcomes, and assessment strategies.
- Teachers were better equipped to plan lesson plans, teaching strategies, and internal assessments in accordance with university guidelines.
- Enhanced coordination and uniformity in syllabus delivery within the department.

Conclusion

The Syllabus Orientation Programme was highly informative and beneficial for the faculty members. The insights shared by Prof. Rekha H. N. helped bridge the gap between university-level discussions and departmental implementation. The programme ensured preparedness among faculty members for the effective and systematic execution of the revised syllabus, thereby contributing to academic excellence and quality enhancement within the department.
