The Wine Festival held on 12th November 2024 in the Microbiology lab of The Oxford College of Science was a unique and engaging event that showcased the skills and creativity of students from the Department of Microbiology. Ms. Manasa Y was the coordinator for the program. The event was organized to highlight the art of winemaking, emphasizing the scientific processes involved in fermentation and the innovative techniques employed by the students to craft 12 distinct varieties of wine. The festival not only provided a platform for students to exhibit their work but also fostered a sense of community and learning among attendees.
